Men Who Paid Premiums to Receive Only the Sum

Opinion by Judge Ingram.

"All of the circumstances of the transaction disclose the fact that the policy was a wagering contract of insurance. Smith and Kelly, for the payment of the premiums, were to give Mrs. Drinker one thousand dollars, and they were to get the balance of the six thousand dollars, the amount of the consideration being the premiums they paid. They occupied no position of blood or relationship which gave them any insurable interest in the life Joseph E. Drinker.
